

Partner Search Form

Please do not write more than two pages.

Identification of the applicant
Name of the organisation	Internationale Liga für Menschenrechte e.V. (ILMR
	International League for Human Rights (ILHR) – FIDH /AEDH Germany
Registered address (street, city, country)	Greifswalder Str. 4, 10405 Berlin, Germany
Telephone / Fax	Tel: ++49+30 396 2122
Website of the organisation	ilmr.de
Name of the contact person	Dr. Jan Wollmann
Email/Telephone of the contact person	jan.wollmann@ilmr.de
	Tel: ++49+30 396 2122
	Mobil: ++49+173 89 255 91
Short presentation of your organisation (key activities, experience)	The International League for Human Rights (ILHR) an independent nonprofit organization with activities dating back to 1914. The League's work is based upon the Universal Declaration of Human Rights from 1948, the European Convention for Himan Rights from 1950 and the International Covenant on Civic and Political Rights from 1966. The ILHR advocates the conservation and further development of civic and human rights in German in Europe and worldwide and opposes any and acconstraints or redemption of constitutional principles or civic liberties. Since 1962, the ILHR awards the annual Carl von Ossietzky Medal in the area of civil honor in realizing, defending and further development of huma rights and peace. Since 2012 the award has been presented biannually. The ILHR has initiated and jointly carried out numerous projects in the field of human rights policidrawing upon the League's strong network, both a the national and international scale.

Strand, Measure in the framework of "Europe for Citizens" Programme Timetable of the project 12 Months / Starting August 2016 or January 2017 The aim of this project is the conception of an enhanced European and participative debate on the issue of TTIP. In this context, a central conference with 100-170 participants will be held in Berlin. Smaller events will be carried out in different countries, each with a meeting or workshop format consisting of 3-50 participants. Additionally, an online platform will be developed to accompany the events. The theme of these events will be centered around the European dimension of TTIP. Various national perspectives will be discussed in relation to the specific chances and risks presented by TTIP, and actors who have primarily worked at the national scale thus far will be brought together via this European platform. Participants will gain new perspectives and serve, in turn, as multipliers within their respective national debates. The forum will be accompanied by the Internet platform, which documents and mediates the discussion amongst European citizens. The participants and target audience consist of European scientists, activists, lobbyists, policy makers and citizens. As lead partner, the ILHR will manage the conference in Berlin. Workshops and meetings will be organized by the partner organizations in the respective countries. These partner organizations will solve organized by the partner organizations will consider the project's sustained impact.	Description of the project
The aim of this project is the conception of an enhanced European and participative debate on the issue of TTIP. In this context, a central conference with 100-170 participants will be held in Berlin. Smaller events will be carried out in different countries, each with a meeting or workshop format consisting of 3-50 participants. Additionally, an online platform will be developed to accompany the events. The theme of these events will be centered around the European dimension of TTIP. Various national perspectives will be discussed in relation to the specific chances and risks presented by TTIP, and actors who have primarily worked at the national scale thus far will be brought together via this European platform. Participants will gain new perspectives and serve, in turn, as multipliers within their respective national debates. The forum will be accompanied by the Internet platform, which documents and mediates the discussion amongst European citizens. The participants and target audience consist of European scientists, activists, lobbyists, policy makers and citizens. As lead partner, the ILHR will manage the conference in Berlin. Workshops and meetings will be organized by the partner organizations will also engage the corresponding speakers for the events and will contribute to the development of an innovative format and act as multipliers in order to ensure the project's sustained impact.
hanced European and participative debate on the issue of TTIP. In this context, a central conference with 100-170 participants will be held in Berlin. Smaller events will be carried out in different countries, each with a meeting or workshop format consisting of 3-50 participants. Additionally, an online platform will be developed to accompany the events. The theme of these events will be centered around the European dimension of TTIP. Various national perspectives will be discussed in relation to the specific chances and risks presented by TTIP, and actors who have primarily worked at the national scale thus far will be brought together via this European platform. Participants will gain new perspectives and serve, in turn, as multipliers within their respective national debates. The forum will be accompanied by the internet platform, which documents and mediates the discussion amongst European citizens. The participants and target audience consist of European scientists, activists, lobbyists, policy makers and citizens. As lead partner, the ILHR will manage the conference in Berlin. Workshops and meetings will be organized by the partner organizations in the respective countries. These partner organizations will also engage the corresponding speakers for the events and will contribute to the developement of an innovative format and act as multipliers in order to ensure the project's sustained impact.	Timetable of the project	12 Months / Starting August 2016 or January 2017
by TTIP, and actors who have primarily worked at the national scale thus far will be brought together via this European platform. Participants will gain new perspectives and serve, in turn, as multipliers within their respective national debates. The forum will be accompanied by the Internet platform, which documents and mediates the discussion amongst European citizens. The participants and target audience consist of European scientists, activists, lobbyists, policy makers and citizens. As lead partner, the ILHR will manage the conference in Berlin. Workshops and meetings will be organized by the partner organizations in the respective countries. These partner organizations will also engage the corresponding speakers for the events and will contribute to the development of an innovative format and act as multipliers in order to ensure the project's sustained impact.		hanced European and participative debate on the issue of TTIP. In this context, a central conference with 100-170 participants will be held in Berlin. Smaller events will be carried out in different countries, each with a meeting or workshop format consisting of 3-50 participants. Additionally, an online platform will be developed to accompany the events. The theme of these events will be centered around the European dimension of TTIP. Various national perspectives will be discussed in
Role of the partner organisation in the project Role of the partner organizations will also engage the corresponding speakers for the events and will contribute to the development of an innovative format and act as multipliers in order to ensure the project's sustained impact.		by TTIP, and actors who have primarily worked at the national scale thus far will be brought together via this European platform. Participants will gain new perspectives and serve, in turn, as multipliers within their respective national debates. The forum will be accompanied by the Internet platform, which documents and mediates the discussion
Role of the partner organisation in the project Role of the partner organisation in the project ence in Berlin. Workshops and meetings will be organized by the partner organizations in the respective countries. These partner organizations will also engage the corresponding speakers for the events and will contribute to the development of an innovative format and act as multipliers in order to ensure the project's sustained impact.		ropean scientists, activists, lobbyists, policy makers
Comments from the applicant	Role of the partner organisation in the project	ence in Berlin. Workshops and meetings will be organized by the partner organizations in the respective countries. These partner organizations will also engage the corresponding speakers for the events and will contribute to the development of an innovative format and act as multipliers in order to en-
•	Comments from the applicant

